MOKENA BOY TELLS OF HAPPY SURPRISE MEETING

Mrs. Martin Muehler of Mokena received a letter this week from her son Hans in which he told of a happy surprise meeting in Pearl Harbor, where he is stationed.

Their meeting was so happy that they spent the day together and also several evenings of that week.

Happy memories were exchanged but most of the time they spent looking over a scrapbook of Hans' in which he has collected pictures and newspaper clippings of Mokena boys who are now in all parts of the world also snapshots of the folks at home and sceneries of old Mokena which proved that even in beautiful Hawaii, little Mokena is outstanding because its "Home."

Sen. Brooks Aids Mokena School To Get Needed Coal

When the Mokena Public school coal supply began getting rather low, L. G. Bruder, Mokena coal dealer, appealed to Senator C. Wayland Brooks in Washington requesting his assistance in getting a needed shipment of coal. Senator Brooks on the date of Jan. 31 wrote to Mr. Bruder as follows:

You will find enclosed the response of the solid fuel administration for war to whom I wrote concerning your need for coal.

I am glad to know the car of Franklin County egg coal was made available to you although I am sorry it was not possible to order the West Virginia coal for the reasons stipulated by the administrator.

The letter to Senator Brooks from C. J. Potter, deputy solid fuels administrator is as follows:

This will acknowledge your letter of Jan. 22 written in behalf of the Bruder Coal Co. of Mokena, Ill. requesting our assistance in obtaining one car of Franklin County egg coal to be used in the public school and an additional car of Pocahontas low volatile coal from the West Virginia field.

Immediately upon receipt of your letter we telephoned our Chicago office instructing it to make available the car of Franklin County coal to be used in the public school of Mokena.

In view of the critical shortage of Pocahontas West Virginia coal at the time and its requirements for special purposes such as the production of steel and other various essential uses, we regret to inform you that it is impossible to make this coal available for shipment to Mokena, Ill. which is adjacent to large Illinois coal producing mines.

The residents of Mokena, as well as Mr. Bruder deeply appreciate the efforts of Senator Brooks and Deputy fuel administrator Potter for securing the needed coal for the Mokena school.

BRITISH AID IN PACIFIC
Ex-Representative Norris Poulson of California, Republican, returned from London recently and refused to be quoted in the press on what he had learned there about British aid to the U. S. A. against Japan.

Finally, confronted with the detail of a conversation in which he had participated, Poulson admitted that he had discussed the Pacific war with two influential members of the British parliament.

"Just what sort of help can we expect from you people once Germany is knocked out?" Poulson asked them.

"Well, we've got an army of over 7,000,000 Indians," one of the two Britons replied. "You can have them."

"But you know perfectly well we cannot rely on them," Poulson said bluntly. "You'll be lucky if they don't fight against you; let alone fight for you against Japan."

The Britisher admitted he, too, was worried about the Indians, but added, "At any rate, there's a large army of Australians and New Zealanders."

"In other words," countered Poulson, "you people here on the island are going to pull out just as soon as you can, leaving to your colonials the responsibility for any aid we get in the Pacific."

"That's about right," was the reply. "We've had five years of war here. That's enough."

Note—Despite congressional concern, some high U. S. navy men are not enthusiastic about either British or Russian help against Japan. They feel U. S. forces can do the job themselves.

When the British wanted to send a naval force to cooperate with the American fleet in the Philippines, Admiral King objected and the President virtually had to overrule him.

BRITISH TROOPS PROTECT GREEKS

For some reason the news was suppressed in the United States, but a very significant event took place in Salonika, Greece, during the trouble between the British and the EAM-ELAS Greeks.

When the British ordered troops in Salonika to suppress the Greeks, the troops sided with the Greeks and refused to fire on them.

The troops were a garrison of the British Indian army. The Indians threw their weight on the side of the Greek organization which bitterly opposed the return of King George, and which Churchill claims to be communist. There was no rioting or bloodshed. The Indian troops simply cooperated with the Greeks.

Simultaneously Krishna Menon, secretary of the India league, made a speech in London attended by several members of the British parliament in which he praised the Indian troops in Salonika and said: "They go in their landlords' cars and vote against him."

The incident is considered extremely important not only as it effects Greece, but as it effects India and the Far East. General Stilwell, when in the Burma theater, was reported by U. S. Ambassador William Phillips as considering British-Indian troops mercenaries who would not put their hearts into any battle as long as India was not given its independence.

SECOND CALVIN COOLIDGE

In more ways than one, Harry Truman is like Calvin Coolidge. He comes from the same backwoods origin. He seldom makes speeches on the senate floor. He is thrifty, remembers the days when the drug-store paid him $3 a week.

But more than anything else Truman has the same brand of Coolidge political luck. The lightning hit Cal first during the Boston police strike, later when the party bosses in the smoke filled room at the Blackstone hotel wanted a good composite vice president to go with Harding.

The lightning struck Truman when his investigating committee hurtled him to fame, later when the Democratic bosses dining at the White House decided that he was the compromise candidate to replace Henry Wallace.

That is the man who has assumed the life insurance duties of vice president of the United States. He will be worth watching.

CAPITAL CHAFF

When Allied troops entered a little Belgian town for the first time the local church warden climbed to the carillon tower of the church and the bells started to ring out "The Star-Spangled Banner." Next came "God Save the King" and, finally, "Swanee River."

John Danaher of Connecticut, who failed of reelection to the senate in November, may get back here even though he lost out to Brien McMahon. Connecticut law requires a four-month notice before an election to replace the late Francis Maloney can be held, and Republican Governor Ray Baldwin may name Republican Danaher to serve in the interim, with Danaher also running in the election.

Burma engineers have coined a new word to describe jungle trails. A fairly good trail is described as "leapable."

JESUS AND THE TWELVE

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 10:1, 5-8; 11:1, 25-30.

GOLDEN TEXT—Ye are my friends, if ye do whatsoever I command you.—John 15:14.

Service for Christ has not always been as impressive and effective as it should be because it has lacked conviction and spiritual power. God did not intend it to be the weak and faltering thing that it often is, because of our failure to go God's way.

The sending out of the twelve had special significance, and yet it brings forth principles which have a bearing on the service of every believer in Christ.

The Servants of Christ—
I. Have a Divine Commission (10:1, 5-8).

The twelve disciples had already been called into the Lord's service. Now they were to be prepared for the service which was ahead. It was a time of commissioning and empowerment for service.

God calls men today to serve Him. In fact, there is a very real sense in which every Christian is called to serve. Let no one try to excuse himself from that responsibility and privilege.

To some comes a special call to leave their accustomed daily work and launch out into a broader service for Christ. When that time comes, we may go forth with the assurance that the power of a divine Saviour goes with us. The twelve disciples had some special powers which we do not have and do not need. God suits the power to the need, and that means that in every circumstance we may look to Him with assurance, and go on.

One of our difficulties in dealing with such matters as spiritual power is that we interpret the things of the realm of the spirit by physical standards and measurements. We are so quick to say "I cannot" on the basis of our logical human reasoning, when an appreciation of the power of God which is operative on our behalf would make us say with confidence, "I can." But, sadly enough, having left God out of our reckoning, we find that it is indeed true that we cannot.

Serving Christ means doing so in His power, and with His grace upon us. Nothing less will do! Nothing more is needed!

II. Declare a Divine Revelation (11:1, 25-27).

The messenger's responsibility and importance are largely determined by the nature of the message he has to convey. Particularly is that true where the message must pass through his personality and thus be proclaimed. The nations of the earth choose their most able men to be their ambassadors and grant them full power.

The glorious thing about being a messenger for God is that we carry no ordinary communication. What we have to present is far above the most important message any earthly ambassador could possibly have to carry.

We, the children and servants of God through Jesus Christ, have something direct from the throne of God. He has revealed it (v. 25), and it seemed good in His sight to give it to those who had the childlike faith to believe Him.

God's revelation is hidden from those who are wise in their own conceits, who are too proud to come by way of humility and faith. Thank God, some of the wise and mighty of this world have been willing to become as little children and learn at the feet of Jesus.

The encouraging thing about it is that the door is open to the simplest believer to trust God, to take the revelation of God's truth in His word, and give it out with grace and power.

III. Extend a Divine Invitation (11:28-30).

"Come"—what a blessed word for the needy and sinful! They are not to be shut out by their sin, nor to be hindered by their weakness. The door is open, and the invitation is to come. Why not respond?

To whom are they to come? To Jesus. There are times when men can help us, when friends or church officers or the pastor can give us an uplifting word of counsel and encouragement. But for salvation, for a real lifting of the burden from the shoulders of those "that labor and are heavy laden," there is no one like Jesus.

We are privileged to invite people to Jesus, knowing that if they "learn" of Him (v. 29), they will not only have their loads lifted and find rest, but will enter into a blessed yoke, fellowship with Him in life and service.

His is a wholesome or a kindly yoke. That is the meaning of "easy" in verse 30. It is not always easy to serve Christ, but being yoked with Him in a kindly fellowship of service makes the burden light.

The world is full of tired and discouraged people. We who know Christ have the adequate answer to their need. Shall we not go in His name to present the truth to them and invite them to come to Christ?

SNAPPY FACTS ABOUT RUBBER

The day is not far distant when packages of fruit, vegetables, other foods and perishable materials will be sealed with flexible materials in the form of lacquers, adhesives and plastics.

Few sources of substitutes for natural rubber have been overlooked by U. S. scientists. In 1943 more than 2,000 varieties of plants were tested for their rubber possibilities.

Rubber-tired vehicles have been mainly responsible for the development of America's 3,000,000 miles of roads and highways—the largest and finest highway system in the world.

That Nagging Backache

May Warn of Disordered Kidney Action

Modern life with its hurry and worry, irregular habits, improper eating and drinking—its risk of exposure and infection—throws heavy strain on the work of the kidneys. They are apt to become over-taxed and fail to filter excess acid and other impurities from the life-giving blood.

You may suffer nagging backache; headache, dizziness, getting up nights, leg pains, swelling—feel constantly tired, nervous, all worn out. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination.

Try Doan's Pills. Doan's help the kidneys to pass off harmful excess body waste. They have had more than half a century of public approval. Are recommended by grateful users everywhere. Ask your neighbor!

WHY QUINTUPLETS use this great rub for SORE THROAT COUGHS due to COLDS

Wonderful for Grown-Ups, Too!
Ever since they were tiny tots—when ever the Quintuplets catch cold—their chests, throats and backs are immediately rubbed with Musterole.
Musterole gives such blessed prompt relief because it's more than just an ordinary "salve." It's what so many Doctors and Nurses call a modern counter-irritant. It not only relieves coughs, sore throat, aching chest muscles due to colds, makes breathing easier—but it actually helps break up congestion in upper bronchial tract, nose and throat.
And Musterole is so much easier to apply than a mustard plaster. White, Stainless, just rub it on! "No fuss. No muss with Musterole!"

THE STORY THUS FAR: Amos Croy and his wife, when first married settled on a farm in Missouri, where Homer was born. Every Sunday meant church, company for dinner, and steer weighing. The Croys attended the Omaha Exposition, where Homer saw his first horseless carriage, motion picture and "hula" dancer. Renzo purchased a farm nearby and became a welcome addition to the community. Homer was the first Croy to attend high school. At first shy, before he graduated he felt at home. He then went to college and signed up as the first student in the first Journalism class in America. He edited the Post-Dispatch for one day. Arriving in New York, he visits an editor.

CHAPTER XVII

I got up respectfully.
"Sit down," he said, and we sat on the creaking seat. He looked at me, puzzled. "We've bought some things from you, haven't we?"

"A few," I said as if the thing was hardly worth mentioning.

"Let's see, you're from Kansas, or Missouri, aren't you?"

"Yes, sir, from Missouri."

"You didn't have any trouble about getting your last check, did you?"

"No, sir."

He looked relieved. "Well, sometimes . . . you know how things are."

I nodded to show him I was an old hand at such things.

He looked at me, evidently making up his mind about something. "You're quite a ways from home, aren't you?"

"It's the first time I was ever in New York. It's quite a little burg!" I said and gave a laugh to show how quaint the place was. "While I was here I thought I would drop in on you."

"I'm glad you did. Didn't you write a piece about the new names that the government is making the Indians adopt?"

I moved uneasily. "You sent it back."

Then he moved uneasily. "Well, I knew I'd seen it. Maybe next time you'll have better luck."

We both laughed a little.

"How long are you going to be in town?"

"I haven't quite decided."

All the time I was becoming more and more self-conscious, and couldn't think of anything to say . . . when for so long I had looked forward to this very moment. We talked about this and that, but all the time I was growing more and more ill at ease. The conversation died away; we worked hard and revived it. With so little to say, I could look at him more closely and as I looked I saw something that shocked me—a grease spot on his necktie! A great editor with a grease spot! Even if it was a small one. Suddenly, almost with a blinding revelation, I realized that he was human, had the same frailties and shortcomings that other people had, and I relaxed and became more natural. The artificial barrier melted away and we talked in a natural manner. Really visited. It was not long before words were flying and we were laughing, when, at first, my mouth had been full of cotton.

He followed me to the elevator, both of us at ease. He became a fine friend of mine and, later, became magazine editor and still later, drama editor of the New York Herald-Tribune.

I thought I could get a job on the New York World, after having been on the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, but it didn't work out that way. I went from one newspaper to another, but got nowhere. After telling my experience, I would add, "By the way, I am the first student in the first school of journalism in the world." That usually ended matters, for I did not realize how bitter the feeling of old-time newspapermen was against a school of journalism. I might as well have said, "By the way, I am a dope addict." They could have got rid of me but little faster. I tried every paper in New York and Brooklyn; even answered an ad and went to New Brunswick, New Jersey.

The situation wasn't desperate, for I was selling a few things, "Pot-boilers" they would be called today, but I thought they were good. At least, I wrote them with all the skill I could summon.

My weekly letter came from Pa. "Dear Son," it always began and ended, "Very truly, Your Father." To anyone else the news would be inconsequential; to me it was important and vital. The cutworms were at it again. There seemed to be some indication of black rust. Chicken thieves had been in the neighborhood.

I think one of the deep feelings of anyone coming to New York is to want the home folks to believe he is doing well. I was lonesome, so I developed many correspondents, and to each I painted as glowing a picture of myself as I could. I did not say, outright, I was prosperous; but, on the other hand, I didn't tell them I wasn't. Then I hit on something very nice, indeed.

I became acquainted with a clerk at the Hotel Astor and arranged to receive my mail there; so I got some of their crested stationery, and had a fine flourishing correspondence. I'm sure no one ever guessed I was living in a second-class rooming house on Lexington Avenue, at Twenty-eighth Street.

My seeming prosperity was too good to last, for my hotel friend left, and when I tried to continue my arrangement I was sternly rebuked. But I had a way around that. I still had their stationery and at the bottom of their impressive letterhead I would add: Temporary address, so-and-so Lexington Avenue, New York." Meanwhile I had gathered up some other hotel stationery, and one day, by chance, I mixed my swanky envelope and letterhead. It was not long before I had a letter from my friend wanting to know at exactly which hotel I was living, then explained I had the stationery of two hotels. I was chagrined at being caught in my deception, but as I read on I found he was treating it lightly, in fact humorously. So I wrote to another friend, this time purposely mixing my ingredients, and got a mystified reply from him. I began to see the humorous possibilities of what I had stumbled into. It was not long before I improved on hotel stationery, which anyone could pick up, by getting stationery from any place I could. In fact, no sheet of bizarre stationery was safe. If I could purloin a letterhead from the Eden Musee and put it in a Fiss, Doerr & Carroll Horse Auction envelope, I was delighted. The way people rose to this foolery was most stimulating and kept me from being quite so lonesome.

My impersonal Missouri friend did give me one tip. He said that Theodore Dreiser, who was editor of three Butterick women's magazines, was looking for a cub. Theodore Dreiser! Author of "Sister Carrie." In Philadelphia there were two great names—Lorimer and Bok. In New York—Dreiser.

I seemed hardly to breathe when I was shown into his presence, but I might as well have, for he seemed hardly to notice me. He was tall, but not so tall as I, and balanced on his nose was a pair of eyeglasses with a cord running down the side. That was the way an editor should look. But there seemed to be no stovepipe hat.

Then I said something about Missouri. I must have already mentioned it several times, but seemingly he had not heard, for suddenly he paused in his paper shuffling and said, "You say you are from Missouri?"

"Yes, sir."

"Where is Washington, Missouri?"

It came with such utter unexpectedness that I had to think a moment before I could answer.

"It's in Franklin County, not far from St. Louis. That's where they make corn-cob pipes."

He looked at me with real interest, then asked a few questions about my experience which, evidently, he had paid no attention to. Then said, "I've asked a hundred people that question, but not one has known. I think I'll hire you. That's where my wife is from."

I was tremendously pleased. A New York magazine! And under Theodore Dreiser. I was terribly afraid of Dreiser, but still I liked him, for he was a curious combination of sternness and gentleness. I can still see that flashing eye and that low-hanging underlip; and I can still hear his sympathetic voice if someone was in trouble.

I had been there only a few days before I was given my first real task. The magazine had had a contest entitled "My Pet Animal True Story," and ten thousand letters had come in. They were stacked in boxes and piled on desks and tables. None of the regular staff wanted to read them, but when I was given the job, I was delighted. Here was a peek at things other people had written. At first I read each one carefully and meticulously, making marks on it to refresh my memory. Then I saw that the anecdotes fell into classifications—stories about dogs, cats, ponies, spiders, and so on. Pretty soon I learned how to read quickly. I would glance at the beginning and if I saw that it was a story about a canary, I would jump to the end to find the climax. If the story wasn't as good as the canary story I already had, then into the "rejects" it'd go. At last, I had read them all, and the ones I had selected went to the "honorary judges." The judges agreed that a story about a pet crane was the best, but there were also twenty small prizes. Then I had my first glimpse into the way prize contests are decided. There was not much difference between the stories, so it was agreed to spread the prizes around geographically. And that was exactly what was done. One prize went to Maine, the next to New Mexico, and so on. And I've seen that work out many times since—the "geographical angle."

One day I got to see the wheels actually go around. Dreiser called me—the cub—into his office and, peering over the top of the glasses dangling on his nose, said:

"Get the staff together. Bring them into my office."

A staff conference was held once a week, in this big room, but this was not the day for it; never before had he called for a conference to be held in his private office.

It was not long before we were filing in. But Dreiser kept on working, never looking up, for he was a bit of a showman.

Finally he turned around, took off his glasses and quickly popped them back on again, which was a little mannerism of his. "I started to edit this story," he said, holding up a manuscript, "and I found this in it. I'll read it."

A hush fell over us, for we knew a crisis had come.

He began to read aloud. The sum and substance of it was this: the magazine had bought the short story from a then-famous author, and in the story the woman character had smoked a cigarette.

At the end of the passage he paused. "How did that get by?" he demanded.

There was a good deal of uneasy shifting. No one knew exactly. It was just one of those things.

"We can change it," someone suggested.

"If that could be done I would not have called you in," he said. "The whole story depends on the woman smoking. If the cigarette is edited out, there is no story."

They discussed it in detail, and that point was true. All kinds of wicked substitutes were suggested, but none would do.

She smoked, or she didn't. There was no halfway.

Someone suggested sending it back to the author and letting her solve the problem. But she was in Europe and the story had been scheduled.

Finally Dreiser said, "The point is far bigger than this matter of a cigarette. All the women's magazines are too 'nice'; they don't meet life squarely. If we want really to touch the lives of our readers, we've got to get down to vitals and stop being prissy. The woman in this story is going to smoke."

There was a moment's hush, for all recognized the seriousness of the situation. It might lose the magazine a great deal in the way of circulation. Certainly a hundred ministers would thunder.

At last the conference was over. But the trouble wasn't, for the business office soon saw a copy of the story and now there was a conference indeed! This time Dreiser had to go to their office. He had enemies in the business end, and they made an issue of this. But Dreiser was a fighter and, by sheer force of personality, won out. Of course the magazine failed, but this was many years later. I don't think the cigarette killed it.

I want to return to the feel of corn growing at night. "Growing weather" we call it. It will grow one-third as much during the night as it will during the day, we say. And it would seem to be true. For when you come out in the morning, it does look bigger; and when you cultivate, it strikes you higher on the thigh. Corn, at night, has a peculiar way of whispering to itself, as if it knew secrets far beyond what its masters know. And, if you wander near a cornfield at night, you can't doubt it. Now and then a night bird flies over, with a rush of wings almost in your ears; now and then a polecat pads by; horses look up from their cropping, then go on about their business. Suddenly the windmill changes gears and makes so much noise that it startles you. The steers are chewing their fourth stomach. One of the steers gets up and goes over to the water tank, the cracking of its pasterns sounding startlingly loud.

Tinley Park News

The PTA celebrated Founders' Day, and their twentieth anniversary in the Tinley Park school auditorium last Friday.

The President, Mrs. Campbell, extended greetings to everyone. After a short business meeting the Faculty and a group of children from the fifth and sixth grades took part in an interesting Founders' Day Pageant, "The Shining Road". This gave an enlightening story of the Founders' ideals and the organizing of the PTA work. Mrs. Sandige took part in the Candle Lighting ceremony of the Past Presidents. Each president and charter member was presented with a lovely corsage. A few minutes of reminiscing of the twenty years that these members served was enjoyed.

After the program the members were invited to attend open house in the fifth grade. A miniature layout of Tinley Park as well as drawings of the individuals in the room and many suggestions on Safety, were displayed. It proved the youngsters are alert, and under the fine guidance of Miss Fritz are learning the value of safety and are developing fine thoughts.

Mrs. Morton and Mrs. McIntosh were the hostesses at the tea table. Coffee and birthday cake were served. Mrs. Gray and Mrs. DeVol were the hostesses at the door.

Much credit for this fine meeting is due our Hospitality chairman, Mrs. DeVol, and her committee for the day, Mrs. Clark and Mrs. Brandau.

Reporting to the Army Ground Service Forces Redistribution Station in Hot Springs Ark., T. Sgt. John A. Lehmann, Tinley Park, is now living in one of the four major Hot Springs hotels acquired by the Army to house the new installation.

Veteran of 32 months overseas combat in the Southwest Pacific war theatre, T. Sgt. Lehmann returned to the United States in December. Prior to reporting in at Hot Springs he spent a 21 day furlough with his parents Mr. and Mrs. Otto Lehmann, at 6511 W. 174th St. Tinley Park.

He will be in Hot Springs for less than two weeks, waiting reassignment to active duty. The primary function of the Redistribution Station, to assign the returned soldier to the Army job for which he is best fitted, will be accomplished in surroundings designed for rest and relaxation. Under these conditions, expert interviewers and classification personnel secure the maximum cooperation from the returnees.

Under the direction of the Eighth Service Command, the Redistribution Station in Hot Springs is one of the five recently set up by the Army Service Forces.

Because of her high scholastic average at Illinois Wesleyan University Dorothy Campbell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. Brown Campbell, has been placed on the Dean's honor roll.

At the end of each quarter the Dean of the College of Liberal Arts releases the Dean's List which is composed of all regular full time students in the College of Liberal Arts whose scholastic average for the preceding quarter was 3.5 or higher.

To earn a place on the Dean's list there fore, a student must earn the equivalent of at least half A and half B grades. Miss Campbell is a Senior at Illinois Wesleyan.

The RNA Juveniles will have their Valentine party Feb. 14 at the VFW hall after school. There will be an election of officers and the beginning of the attendance record.

Citizens Service Comm.

Just a few lines to let you know of my change of address and to keep in touch with some of the people I know. I've been transferred from Norman, Okla. to San Diego, Cal.

I had been getting the Tinley Times in Norman and sure would like to have it sent out here. Also I would like to have the addresses of any Tinley servicemen that may be stationed near here so I could look them up.

As far as I know, I will be here for two or three years. I am working on Naval planes and also assembly and repair of all kinds of ordnance. I work 8 hours a day and am on liberty the rest of the time. Every Sunday off and every third Saturday and Sunday. The weather out here is swell, just like summer at home and I guess it stays that way about all year a little cool at night but not bad.

There is not much more to say right now but I will drop a line again soon. Hoping this war ends as quickly as possible. I will close for now.

Sincerely, Kelly Hirsch USS Massachusetts Dec. 9, 1944

Dear Friends: I want to thank you for the swell Christmas package you sent me, with the weather being warm all year round out here it doesn't seem much like its getting close to Christmas, but your gift being the first one brings in a lot of Christmas spirit.

How I wish we had some of that cool air here, that you are blessed with now. I don't suppose you people like that though.

In case you might want to know what I'm doing, I'm in the Engineers force on the USS Massachusetts, which is a battleship. We are the ones that make the propellers go round. I don't know of any other divisions aboard that I would rather be in. I like it real well. One of the many advantages of being on a large ship is that you have less chance of getting seasick, although I've come close to it. One time when we were eating chow while the sea was pretty rough the bench that four of us were sitting on slid away from the table and all the way over to the other side of the mess hall. There we were sitting with our forks in our hands and no chow.

I must close now Oh yes, I've been getting the Tinley Park paper and I really enjoy it. Thanks a lot for everything.

Respectfully, Willis M. Guth

Received your very nice and very welcome letter last evening and want you to know that I appreciate your writing very much. Please keep it up and I'll try and answer all of your letters, that goes for any one else in Tinley who cares to drop a G. I. a few lines.

Again let me tell you that I appreciated the Christmas package very much. Both the Ladies and the men did a very good job in picking out the contents for the package.

You need not tell me cause I know that my Helen is a peach. I should know if anyone does. Sure would like to get home to her and my son very soon. Don't we all tho.

About my poker games I don't sit in the big games at all cause I'm not that good a player as yet and then I only play to pass away some of my odd moments. The Tinley Times hasn't arrived for some time now but with the Christmas mail and packages coming in I'm sure that I will get an issue or two in the near future. I do enjoy meeting you folks through the Times and hope that you folks still will be there to see you all personally.

As yet I've not seen Emory Fulton altho we are both in the same division and aren't any too far from each other. I hope that one of these days we can get together so he can give me some information about Our Town.

Dear Mrs. Moss and Com-

I received your most wonderful package a few days ago and I find it very hard to find words enough to express my gratitude. I can say this much tho, without your package Christmas wouldn't be complete this year. I hope some day that I have the opportunity to thank you each and everyone personally and I hope that will come before another Christmas holiday session arrives.

The mail situation has been decidedly on the poor side of late and I haven't received the Tinley Park paper in over two months. I suppose one of these days all the copies I've been looking for will arrive at once. And then I'll have plenty of back reading to catch up on anyway I hope this happens cause I find the Times very good reading material.

Due to the fact that we have been pretty busy over here on this side of the pond, I haven't been able to get around to see all the places I'd like to but I have been to Orleans and Chartres and enjoyed my trips immensely. The one thing in France that impresses me most is the number of churches one sees over here and most of them are very beautiful. I'm looking forward to a trip to Paris and from what some of the boys say about Gay Paree I'm sure I'll enjoy it also. They all rave about the Cathedral of Notre Dame. And I'll make it a point to visit it there first after my visit I'll write back my opinions of the city of gaiety.

I'm taking this opportunity to wish you all in Tinley the best and happiest of holidays.

Bye till next letter and God Bless you all always.

Dear Mrs. Kruspe:

I wish to thank you very much for the Christmas box. I was one of the fortunate ones, who was able to be home for Christmas and upon my return to Hobbs, I received your package. I can assure you I had plenty of help in devouring the contents.

Receiving a box from home, in the Army is similar to living in a community house. Nothing to call your own but believe me it certainly makes matters much more pleasant that way. If you ladies could witness the rumpus a package causes in the barracks, I'm sure you'd be both astonished and pleased and would understand why I'm not only thank you for myself but also for the boys. Will have to close now, give my best to the Orland folks and thank you again for the most welcome gift.

Dear Mrs. Kruspe:

I want to write just a line to thank you very sincerely for the wonderful Christmas box I received. We are new in Orland Park and the reception we received and the warmth shown us is very gratifying to say the least. I only wish that I could thank each and every one responsible in person. Such kindness and thought shown to us, who are in the service, not only touches us, but to carry on in the particular work we are in. As long as we know that the folks back home are remembering us and are doing their part, we will do the best we can. Let me thank you once again and assure you that your gift was deeply appreciated.

Very sincerely yours,

Dear Mrs. Kruspe:

Just a few lines to let you know I received my box of candy. It sure was nice of you and I thank you, also my four hut members. The box took a little time getting here, it went to Camp Cooke, then to Camp Callen and finally caught up with me at Camp San Luis Obispo. I guess I move around too much. And it won't be long and I'll be moving again. The weather sure has been nice here in California and you can call it sunny California. I'll bet its cold there in Orland. Torpedoed Linotypes Reach Far East And Are Now Producing For U. S. Army

First Linotypes in Iran, India

Two Master Model 31 Linotypes intended for use on the Persian edition of Yank, the army magazine, caught hell from torpedoes on the way over, but eventually made port, though in many pieces, and are now clicking away as merrily as Linotypes usually click.

The story of their adventures comes to us in a letter of thanks from the Far East from Major Henry E. Johnson, officer in charge—a letter thanking us for rushing him a spare part and a chart showing where and how the part should be placed.

"En route here", Major Johnson explains, "the machines ran into a torpedo or two and tried to swim over. When they finally arrived, they were sans packing lists and, in some cases, sans boxes. But the thing that hurt most was the fact that we had no instructions for assembling them."

"However, we had what we thought were two machines, and so, with the aid of an apprentice machinist, we spread all the parts over hell's half acre and made one out of two."

It worked! And all we had to go by was an oil chart!

"We then took the broken parts (many, many) to the man in charge of our machine shop, who said he had never even heard of a Linotype, and he made us new parts."

"Now they both work—the first Linotypes in Persia."

"The only thing that had us stopped was that spare part, which we have since put on."

"Yep, the apprentice machinist got promoted!"

We have since learned from special correspondence to the New York Herald Tribune from Tehran, that those battle-scarred but still producing Linotypes are also being employed to set the U. S. Army weekly Newspaper (the Dispatch) published by and for troops of the Persian Gulf command.

"Tech. Sgt. Bill Martley of New Haven, Conn., the editor," ran the story in the Herald Tribune, "has presented to his American, Russian, British and Iranian readers the first edition of a newspaper to be set on Linotype in this part of the world."

"This is a far cry from the early days when the Dispatch was hand set by Iranian compositors who could not read a word of English. Overcoming such handicaps as native helpers who could not speak English outdated local equipment and no supplies, the small staff improved the publication to the point where it won the grand prize in the 1944 world wide contest sponsored by Camp Newspaper Service to determine the best newspaper published in the service."

"The Dispatch has caused considerable discussion among the publishers and journalists of other language newspapers in Tehran. They had never seen a Linotype until this G. I. Journal acquired the only two between Cairo and India. At first the machines were not set up properly, because of missing parts, and they did not function efficiently. This caused a good deal of comment among the local publishers, who were about to decide that perhaps this invention of Western civilization was not a practical one."

WHICH REMINDS US

All of which reminds us, again, of the adventures of two other seagoing Linotypes, back in World War I. Those machines, consigned to Basra, port of Iraq (Mesopotamia), took a long and briny bath when the vessel they were on was sunk by a submarine off the Grecian archipelago.

Three years later, most of the parts of both machines, which had been packed in several boxes, were brought ashore from the depths of the Mediterranean, and Tom King, managed for India of Linotype and Machinery, Ltd., was asked to see what he could do with them.

From the various parts reclaimed, he assembled one machine and got it going nicely. That machine still is producing daily, some twenty five years after it was removed from the brine and mud, in the busy plant of the Government Printing Office at Bagdad.

BABSON INSTITUTE HELPS VETERANS' RELATIVES

Offers Special Courses to Parents and Grandparents of Servicemen

Following the magnificent work which the Babson Institute has done for the U. S. Navy and its thousands of officers during the past two years the Trustees have decided upon a wholly new form of war work to be carried on in the interests of returning veterans. Workmen are now busy renovating and refurbishing the buildings preparatory to these plans.

After most careful study, it was determined that the Institute could best serve the returning boys by aiding their parents in planning for their future. Babson Institute has not the facilities to care for the injured or the nervously broken men. The time has not arrived to give the required veterans' educational courses. The Institute can, however, render a very practical and efficient service for men in the Naval, Army and Air Forces by aiding families in connection with postwar plans for their boys. In fact, this program was suggested by Naval Officers.

The work will consist of Two Months Courses and Special Day Clinics for Adults who have relatives in the service. The Courses will open April 2 and will discuss Employment, Business Opportunities, Educational Demands, Annuities, Trusts, Insurance and other ways that parents and grandparents can best help and protect those depending upon them. The Institute is an endowed non-profit institution. This is said to be the first Course of its kind ever offered. Further details may be obtained by addressing Babson Institute, Babson Park, 57, Mass.

YOU CAN GET

- More Bushels per Acre
- Higher Quality Oats
- More Feed for Stock and Poultry
- Extra Dollars from Your Oat Crop

By Raising The New Disease Resistant, High Yielding Varieties—

TAMA, VICLAND, BOONE or MARION

WHY BE SATISFIED with low yields per acre and poor quality oats when you can get higher yields and higher quality oats by following this simple three-point plan...

1. Rid your farm of all varieties susceptible to leaf rust, stem rust, and smut. New varieties have been developed which have all the good qualities of the older strains and, in addition, are resistant to rust and smuts.

2. Plant only the new improved varieties which are recommended by your State Experiment Station. These new varieties will yield 10 to 15 per cent more than the old varieties, if 1945 is a normal year. If 1945 is a bad rust year, these new varieties should yield at least 50 per cent more oats.

3. Make sure your seed oats are free of weed-seed and other grains. Cleaning and treating seed oats will help to increase your yield from 3 to 10 bushels to the acre. Buy certified seed if available.

REMEMBER, PLANT ONLY THE NEW VARIETIES which are listed below. All are heavy yielding, disease resistant and approved by the State Experiment Station for your state. Buy these improved varieties from your neighbor, country elevator or seed dealer.

The next meeting of officers of Dist. 137 PTA will meet at the home of Mrs. Lena Yeager Friday afternoon Feb. 16 at which time plans will be discussed in preparation for the Founders Day program to be presented at the next regular PTA meeting.

The officers and members of Dist. 137 PTA wish to express their thanks and appreciation for the donation of $10.00 received from the members of the Achievement club of Dist. 137 school. The donation was used as part of the purchase price of the health scale recently received.

A box social sponsored by the Community club and held in the school basement last Thursday, night was voted a big success by all who attended. Besides realizing a substantial sum for the treasury one new member was gained when Mrs. Gladys Fordonski, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Steve Putz joined the club. The guest of the evening was Miss Anna Mae Jungels. Entertainment consisted of a reading of comic valentines, which previously had been exchanged among each other and a bean bag game. Mr. Frank Colangelo, O. A. (Official Auctioneer) then auctioned off the beautifully decorated lunch boxes with considerable spirited bidding. The next big treat being planned by the club is an Oyster stew which will be held March 1. Watch this column for further notice.

Word received from Mrs. Willard Strenge who is in Okla. visiting her husband Seaman 2-c Willard states that he has successfully passed thru the aerial gunnery school there. He is to be re-assigned to the Radar school for further training. Mrs. Strenge intends to return home in a few weeks.

Shirley Ann

The following poem was written by Willis M. Guth to his daughter, Shirley Ann, age 4.

SHIRLEY ANN
Who's got a tiny turned up nose,
Cheeks as rosy as a rose,
Who's eyes say, "Catch me if you can?"

Well! what do you know, its Shirley Ann.

Sometime ago when I was home,
When I was outside, I was seldom alone,
She used to say, "Come play in my sand"

Now I wish I could, my Shirley Ann.
We'd get in the car and go to town,
She'd come in the store and look around,

She'd look at the dishes and pick up a pan,
And say "This is just right for Shirley Ann."

Before we went home, we'd stop in at Cavetts,
This was getting to be a dog gone habit.

An ice cream cone was her demand,
Then all was well with Shirley Ann.
At night I'd sit down, to relax and think,

A voice from the bedroom said "Give me a drink"
Then she giggle aloud, and give me her hand,
And say "Do you love your little Shirley Ann?"

She'd kneel down and say a prayer
And some how I knew that God was there

A wonderful blessing He gave to this man,
My sweet little daughter, my Shirley Ann

Love,
Daddy

Some Observations by New Lenox Soldier

Jan. 21, 1945
"Somewhere"

Mr. Wm. Semmler,
Dear Sir:

I sincerely appreciate all the News Bulletins I have received. Thank you very much! I know all of the fellows including myself, most heartily agree that one can never receive too many letters or newspapers from home. Therefore "keep 'em coming" and we will read them.

I have been plenty busy and covered a lot of water. Which has made the time pass rapidly. At times it seems incredible to believe it has been so long since being on good old U. S. soil.

The Golden Gate would be a magnificent sight to see about now. How ever I know there are many more that have the same desire and deserve seeing it more than myself. Here's hoping they all do very soon.

As art is my hobby, I have done some painting in my spare time. I have painted landscapes and different scenery including along the "Great Barrier Reef" which was a favorite fishing location of the famous writer "Zane Gray". Also have a water color I named "February Back Home". A snow scene. However it is quite different from the climatic conditions here. Its been two years since I last saw any snow. Have witnessed some of the most vivid sunsets one would hope to see. Have done a couple of paintings of the tropical islands. The fellows ask, where do you see anything that beautiful around here? I say, its there if you look for it.

Inclosing a descriptive poem I wrote. As one would see it while at sea.

A Signal Flashing at Sea
As shadows fall of purple and blue
Ablaze with the setting sun,
"General Quarters" and all of the crew.

Are out to man their gun;
Each man on watch is doing his best
Scanning for what ere it may be,
Then a light from out of the west
A signal flashing at sea.

Everyman plays a leading role
A convoy is under way,
Out in the dusk destroyers patrol
Trim and a sleek blue-gray;
Overhead a plane can be heard,
Like the drone of an angry bee,
But nothing seems able to disturb
A signal flashing at sea.

Then quickly all colors disappear,
As evening is setting its sun,
The order is sounded "All is Clear"
Each man secures his gun.

Over the water far into the night,
There is nothing we all agree,
Able to stop the piercing light,
A signal flashing at sea.

The light of dawn now fills the sky,
As it welcomes the morning sun,
Alert and all clear passes by.
Another day has begun;
What it holds no one knows
As we look out over alea,
On the horizon a light still glows,
A signal flashing at sea.

Thanking you again for your consideration of all the fellows and my self.

Sincerely,
W. L. Mangun, EM2-c

Dear Mrs. Lockwood,

I received a Christmas package from the Lincoln Estates Red Cross Unit a few days ago. I want to take this opportunity to thank you and the entire unit for their thoughtfulness. I realize you must have given up quite a lot of your precious time just to make some of us happy, and you can be sure it will never be forgotten.

I know that every fellow "over there" will realize that they're not fighting in vain and will know that when they come back they'll always be welcome by their very good friend. I'm still over here going through a vigorous training in Medicine, but will be out there eventually, doing my bit. When the time comes, I'll look back to the thoughtfulness and generosity of the Red Cross Unit, which will indeed, be a great morale booster. Yes, it's swell to know that we have friends, and again I thank you for everything.

Sincerely yours,
Louis P. Barchis

P.S. I wish every lady in the unit a very Merry Xmas, and a very happy and prosperous New Year.

Dear Friends,
Many thanks to you for the lovely Christmas package, that followed me all the way here and arrived in good condition.

It was thrilling to know in this manner from my home town, and I really do appreciate your kindness and thoughtfulness.

I am being discharged soon from the hospital and expect to be back in Lincoln Estates sometime in the Spring. Believe me it will be a pleasure to be there again—there is no place like home.

Thank you again and best wishes to you all.

Dear Ladies:
Received your package on Dec. 4 and thanks very much. Last year your package was my first Christmas parcel, and also this year too. It sure is swell and the articles are very useful. Was waiting for your package as I was low on handkerchiefs, and figured there would be a couple in it.

Since my last letter have had things a bit easier. Have had several hot showers and clean changes of clothes. Some lucky fellows have had passes to Paris. They really enjoyed it, but they came back minus all their Francs.

The weather here is not very good. There is some snow on the ground now and it is raining and snowing to night.

There is not much to write about here so will bring this to a close. In doing so I again wish to thank every one responsible for the swell Christmas package. Till the next time, so long.

I haven't much news so I'll sign off, saying thank you very much for the gifts and I hope this next year brings us all home again.

3D SON DRAFTED, FARMER MUST ABANDON CROPS

Emil Ziebell, 44, owner of a 110 acre live stock and grain farm near Matteson, said last Friday that he must sell his stock and leave his fields untill this spring, abandoning all food production because the last of his three sons who helped him on the place is being drafted.

"This farm is too much for one man to handle," he said. "It is really too much for man and a boy, but my boy, Donald is more than average industrious, and we managed to carry on."

Donald 18, was ordered to report yesterday for his physical examination prior to induction. His twin, Richard, enlisted Jan. 19, 1944 and is stationed at Oceanside, Cal. Their older brother Robert, 21, was drafted in April, 1943 and is at St. Joseph, Mo.

Its Orders, Draft Board Says.
Ziebell visited Donald's draft board, No. 13, in Flossmoor, and explained that he could not continue to produce milk and meat and grain if he lost his boy to the army.

"There's nothing we can do," a board member told him. "We have our orders from higher up—take all farm youths from 18 to 26 years old."

Ziebell has 30 head of cattle, two brood sows, two horses and 100 chickens, which he said he will have to sell if he is left alone on the farm. He is a widower. Last year he reaped 55 acres of corn, 20 acres of oats, and 12 of hay.

Decided to Plant No Crops
He said that he probably will continue to live on the farm which is a family homestead, but will not plant crops in the spring.

A milk route he operates for other farmers will be continued he said. He picks up pails of milk at neighboring farms every day, and delivers them to a dairy.

"The milk route itself is an essential job," he said. "Maybe these draft officials in Washington won't let me continue producing milk but I'll keep on delivering it."

BETTER SOIL CARE MEANS HIGH YIELD, LOWER OUTPUT COST

CHICAGO.—Soil conservation was recommended as "Item No. 1" in the farmer's postwar planning, in a statement made public here by the Middle West Soil Improvement Committee.

"The best preparation a farmer can make to meet the competitive conditions of the postwar period is to build up the fertility level of his soil," the statement points out.

"It is simple common sense to make ready for the inevitable lowering of farm prices which will come when the present abnormal demand for food slackens. The farmer who looks ahead will have his soil in such shape that high crop yields will cut his production costs to the point where he can withstand a period of lower prices.

"Thus the purchase and application of mixed fertilizer during the next year or two is one of the soundest investments a farmer can make for the future. Compared to the prices of farm products, fertilizer is cheaper today than it has been at any time in the past. In addition to promoting soil conservation, fertilizer pays its own way. Experience has shown that every dollar spent on fertilizer may be expected to return from $3 to $5 in increased yields, quality and feeding value.

"The need for soil conservation has been intensified by vast wartime crop production schedules. The soil's resources of nitrogen, phosphorus and potash have been used up faster than they have been replaced in order to meet the wartime need for more food. Hence a gigantic soil rebuilding job lies ahead—a job which necessarily must be the responsibility of the individual farmer."

SOIL FERTILITY'S ROLE IN PROMOTING HUMAN HEALTH TOLD

CHICAGO.—Rejection of a high percentage of small town and rural men by Selective Service because of physical defects was cited by the Middle West Soil Improvement Committee as a prime reason for promoting better nutrition in the post-war era, through soil fertility rehabilitation.

"Records of a special study by the Department of Rural Sociology at the Ohio Agricultural Experiment Station showed that six of each ten town and country men examined for Selective Service during a recent twelve month period had various health defects," says the statement.

These figures tell a significant story. We are just beginning to understand the extent to which human nutrition, bodily health, mental attitude and many other aspects are affected by soil fertility or lack of it. When the fertility level is low, the soil lacks the ability to produce body-building crops.

EVERYBODY INVITED!

A NUMBER of service sport debaters want to know if it is true that basketball draws in more spectators than any other sport. Also whether the estimated attendance of 90,000,000 a year is correct. My guess would be that the combined total of basketball spectators would be well beyond baseball, football, racing and boxing—but 90,000,000 is quite a collection of human beings.

As a starter it might be mentioned that there are many more basketball teams than there are baseball or football teams. It happens to be a game that is popular in every state in the nation—Far West, Midwest, Southwest, South and East.

Ned Irish has moved at Madison Square Garden that he can bank on an attendance ranging from 15,000 to 18,000 at every performance. There are not so many basketball centers that can match this crowd accommodation—but there are so many hundreds of places on the map that can range from 4,000 to 10,000—and most of these places are usually packed.

For example, Indiana is dotted with towns whose basketball teams draw more to a game than the entire population of the town the game is played in. At least that is what Indiana experts and other camp-followers tell us.

Basketball has never had the chance to compete with an Army-Notre Dame crowd—a Michigan-Ohio State gathering—a Southern California-Notre Dame test—or an Army-Navy show. Many of these games would draw over 200,000 if there was only enough space in which to park the human body—lean and fat.

I doubt that any basketball game, no matter under what favorable conditions, could lure in 75,000 or 100,000 people. If I am wrong, Ned Irish can correct me.

But basketball isn't played in just a few of our bigger stands. It is played in high schools and in colleges—in YMCA's and churches, in boys' clubs and girls' clubs—not in hundreds, but in thousands of spots you never heard about. It isn't a game scattered all over the map but packed all over the map.

I still don't believe the total attendance would run up to 90,000,000 but maybe it does. At least this is an argument that no one can settle, give or take some 10,000,000 spectators.

Faster but Gentler

Basketball today is a faster and a far more skillful game than it was when I happened to play on the Vanderbilt team of some decades back. But it isn't as rough a game as it was then. I am not referring to any man-to-man contact. In those days the gymnasiums were rather small and they were heated by a number of radiators or other warming appliances around the floor.

One of the main ideas then was to bend or pin your opponent over one of these smoking hot devices until the flesh began to sizzle and there was an unpleasant odor of burning skin. I still recall such games where I looked more like a zebra than a human being—where there wasn't so much skin left upon the body and what was left happened to be badly scorched.

Basketball has come a long way since those pioneer, uncovered wagon days when the player took quite a beating, since there were no rules against anything except murder and possibly mayhem. It is all different now. There are thousands of basketball centers that have all the required room needed—that have accommodations for spectators.

In those earlier days, basketball was largely a game intended for the swift. The swift are needed today. But I can't recall facing any opponent over 6 feet 2, where today 6 feet 2 is bordering often on the mid-gut side. There were certainly no opponents ranging from 6 feet 7 to 6 feet 9.

These service debaters always want to know whether or not basketball is the fastest game. Basketball is faster than football or baseball—much faster—but not as fast as hockey where the players have the advantage of ice and skates. A basketball game played on ice with skates would be the all-time top for speed and all around agility. After all, skiing is the fastest sport. Without ice or snow, skates or skis, the next fastest sport is the 100-yard dash.

Baseball Immortals

It is amazing, in a way, the amount of general public interest future nominations for baseball's Hall of Fame have brought about.

The old-timers, now 60 years or over, have the feeling that their favorites are being overlooked by younger generations. These old-timers saw Fred Clarke manage the Pirates 40 years ago and give a great outfield exhibition at the same time. They saw him as a leader and a playing star.

Rural Telephones May Get Federal Loans

Bill Would Provide For Private Expansion

By WALTER SHEAD
WNU Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON D. C.—“The Party Line,” long the butt of jokes and ridicule, may be on its way out if a bill intended to “provide or improve telephone service in rural areas” becomes law under the new 79th congress.

Considerable interest has been aroused in the measure introduced by Senator Lister Hill (D., Ala.) which would provide for a special fund of 100 million dollars and create a federal agency to be known as the “Rural Telephone administration.”

This administration would administer the law and the fund with authority to make loans to telephone companies, or to individuals, corporations, states, municipalities, utility districts, or to non-profit co-operative associations, also to the Rural Electrification administration for the purpose of financing the construction, rehabilitation, modernization and operation of telephone systems, exchange lines, or other facilities for furnishing telephone service to persons in rural areas who are not receiving adequate service. The measure also provides for improvement or betterment of existing service to persons in these areas.

Senator Hill, as a result of considerable study on the rural tele-

Bet on the APO

By MARION TAYLOR

McClure Syndicate—WNU Features.

I DON'T know by what stroke of fortune three boys who grew up together in the same little town of Prairie Junction, Iowa, should land in the same flying outfit in the Pacific, but here we are. And one of us has become an ace with more knocked-out enemy planes to his credit than any other Yank in this theater. That's Roger Barnes. But Tom Norris still has the handsomest face and the most devilish eyes and the most broken hearts along his trail of all men on our island. That is, he did until Roger's fame and daring made headlines in most of the American newspapers.

Roge is a big fellow, awkward and shy as a newborn colt. That's why he never even had a girl back in the old home town, I guess. Although I know plenty who would have been glad enough to step out with him, if he'd given them a chance. Especially Polly Meacham. And Roger was plenty fond of Polly, too. But the only time he ever scraped up enough nerve to ask her for a date, she already had one with Tom Norris. And he was too darn bashful ever to ask her again.

For weeks Tom had been bragging about getting the most letters from dames of all the guys in our gang. On the other hand, Roge probably got the least mail of all of us. But after all those high-powered write-ups about Roge and his bravery, and his Gary Cooperish face appeared in all the newspapers and magazines, things sure changed.

Of course the fellows in our tent weren't slow to let Tom know that there was one guy in the outfit getting more mail from dames than he was. Tom bet Roge two hundred dollars that, given a month's time, he could still be top man so far as such missives were concerned. Roge took him up, stipulating that everything must be on the up and up or the wager would be off.

I offered to help Roge with his answers, and didn't spare the roses. I described the moonlight and the wide sweep of sand and said how lonely I was, and how I wished they were here beside me, and we signed Roge's name. And the results were good.

But the strangest thing was that letters started pouring in by the bucketful for Tom, too. He let us examine them, and they all seemed to be the McCoy.

The worst of it was that there was a letter to him from Polly Meacham. Beside those she sent poor old Roge, it sizzled and scorched.

Things went on like this for a while, with Tom gradually nosing Roger out.

I dropped a personal note to Polly, telling her about the bet and how Roge really loved her and asking her please to do a little sleuthing about Tom at her end.

Two days before the month ended, Roger sat on his bunk reading a long letter from Polly with smiles chasing themselves all over his face. And, after he had finished, he handed it to me with a wide, bashful grin.

“Dearest Roger,” it said. “Yes, I'm going to begin my letter that way because I've been in love with you almost forever, and I think you care a little about me.”

“But I have another important thing to take up with you first. The bet you made with Tom Norris.”

“About a month ago a letter came from Tom, asking me to marry him. Naturally I was flabbergasted. But men are pretty scarce here, and your notes were pretty stiff and formal, so I won't too definite in my refusal. I—well, I thought I'd stall a bit.”

“One afternoon at the Red Cross Lucy Beemis came in, her face shining like a Christmas candle. ‘Girls,’ she shouted, ‘I'm engaged to Tom Norris and I want you to be the first to know it.’”

“‘Like heck you are,’ glared Gertie Simons. ‘He just proposed to me via air mail, and I accepted him.’”

“There were ten girls in that one group Tom had proposed to by A.P.O.”

“So, Roge, you really win. You can tell the boys that Tom violated the terms of the agreement by asking more than fifty girls to marry him just to beat the bet on the A.P.O. . . .”

Local Boys In Thrilling Bout

Bob Bormet of Tinley Park knocked out Peter Marino of Armour Square Monday night Jan. 29 at St. Sabina, Chicago. Golden Glove meet by knocking out Marino in the first round. Bob qualified for the semi-finals and in his first bout Tuesday night he knocked out Ralph Snyder of So. Chicago YMCA in the second round. Snyder like Marino was no match for the smart tricks and training Bormet showed. Later in the evening Bormet fought Sgt. James Estergall of the Marino SNATTC when he pounded out a three round decision by beating the Marino Sgt. which gave Bob the South end Novice title. Feb. 12 at Marigold Bormet will box the human bench from Elgin named Howard Schultz who weighs 248 lbs. and six foot six against Bormet's 181 lbs. 6 foot 3. Bormet's trainers Ed Horn and Tony Arvia admire the big hulk of man that this Schultz is, but can't understand how their fast moving Bormet can not miss knocking out Schultz. They also say Bormet's training is too advanced for big boy who only won the North side title by bulldozing and awkward stance. Johnny Klein was a victim of one of the loudest decisions ever given in boxing after coming up to the finals with two round knockouts fought Harold Morgan on the floor in the first and second round pouncing Morgan with everything but the ring posts. In the third round when the official gave Morgan the decision the crowd jeered and booed for the balance of the evening.

Georgie Doogan of Palos Park won a decision from Ernie Mosley, a colored lad from the CYO. Doogan knocked Mosley all over the ring, for the decision had him on the floor in every round, but alas after Doogan received the decision and slaps on the back from most of the people of Palos Park, it made the boy so happy to think most of his town folks were with him, he started dancing and jumping while walking down the steps to rest for his next bout. On the last step of the stairs Georgie slipped turning his ankle which started to swell causing his trainers to withdraw him from the tournament. Georgie's big uncle Lester of Palos was withdrawn from the tournament due to a cold.

Paul Grosskopf of Orland Park lost a tough decision to Bob Tobin. Grosskopf speared Tobin crossing over his right at will but due to Paul's nose bleeding after the first round, the judges voted in favor of Tobin. If Grosskopf would have taken the advice of his trainers he wouldn't had a bloody nose and would have advanced to the title with ability he has. Reno Ganz of Roseland was so hot and bothered about wanting to fight that the Doctors found Reno with too much temperature to box.

Bormet, Doogan, Klein, Grosskopf, Ganz are being trained by Ed Horn of 214 E. 134 St. Chicago, 27 Boys interested in boxing are invited to contact Ed but must have their Parents permission before receiving instructions.
